To determine the root cause of cognitive decline in some aging clergy and religious experience, Saint Luke Institute has developed a comprehensive Aging and Memory Evaluation Program.

Our extended evaluation assesses whether signs of possible dementia are due to neurological issues or psychological ones, such as depression. The evaluation consists of a complete neurological consultation and workup, a comprehensive neuropsychological assessment, and other medical and psychiatric consultations. It also includes meetings with a spiritual integrator, 24-hour nursing, and personal assistance to help the client during the evaluation and with discharge planning.

For more information, please call and ask about our Aging and Memory Evaluation.
